The statement in a morning paper that the members of the committee had been communicated with last night and requested to call all upon Mr. Nelson, is entirely untrue. Of the three persons who are to represent the call upon the Arbitration Committee is not Mr. N. O. Nelson, who was selected to represent the Citizens' Committee. Mr. Horie, a local reporter this morning that he had received no official notification of his appointment and that he had not been appointed. The committee is waiting for the meeting upon the subject of calling on Mr. Horie. It was Mr. Nelson's opinion that Mr. Horie's views upon arbitration should be obtained before the Citizens' Committee waited for him. Mr. Nelson said that he did not seem anxious to call upon Mr. Horie until they receive some assurance of the success of the reception in store for them.

POPE'S THEATRE.

A New Manager Next Season—Mr. Pope Buys the Property.

Mr. Charles Pope is busy making arrangements for his coming starring season in a repertoire of heroic roles. One of the best companies will be engaged for his support, and will fill in the open weeks at the theatre here with stock pieces, when suitable road attractions cannot be secured. This is a preliminary movement to the return of the old stock company system.

Under the terms of his lease Mr. Pope has all three years in which to purchase the ground on which the theatre stands, but owing to the fact that the interest on the sum necessary for its purchase will amount to less than the present rental he has made arrangements to purchase now. The deeds are being drawn, and the sale will be consummated within the coming week. The price as fixed by the lease is $15,000, which, together with the original construction account of the theatre, $35,000, and the expense of its recent rebuilding, $5,000, will make a total cost of $55,000.

Mr. Fred F. Schrader will manage the theatre next season and have full control in the absence of Mr. Pope. Mr. Schrader is at present manager of the Tootle Opera-house at St. Joe. The gentleman has some acquaintance in St. Louis, having at one time been a compositor on the Republican. He has also had some experience as a journeyman in an editorial capacity in St. Joe, and several little plays have been translated by him from the German. Besides his ability as a business man and a writer, Mr. Schrader has had a theatrical experience that fully qualifies him for his new position.

TRAVELING BY CABLE.

Operation Commenced by the Cable Line This Morning.

The Managers of the Cable Road departed from their habit of postponement and kept their promise to begin operations this morning. The sprinkling of the road and preparing it for active work was commenced shortly after midnight, and before daybreak this morning the line of road was in cap-a-pie order, and the cars were ready for running. Six cars were stationed at the western terminus of the line near the Narrow Gauge Road on Morgan street, and at 6 o'clock the first car was on the down-track, and the clang of the gong gave the signal for the start. Early as the hour was, there was a throng of people gathered at the starting place. The first train was filled with passengers. The first car moved cautiously and slowly, giving constant alarms to pedestrians against the platform and the clang of the gong awakened the sleepers on the line of the road, bringing hundreds of people to the windows and attracting crowds to the crossings and line of tracks. No attempt was made to run rapidly, but due regard was paid to prudence. Six trains, composed of a coach and the grip-car, were started about ten minutes apart, and every train was loaded. Every seat inside was filled, the aisles were filled, and persons were hanging to the platform and steps. The first car had not reached Locust street and sixth before a crowd had collected at that point, and before 8 o'clock the crowd was immense, blocking the sidewalks and streets between sixth and seventh, so that the cars could scarcely move. All the entire line people were leaning out of windows and were standing on the sidewalk watching the novel sight of trains running with no motive power in sight. The cars ran smoothly and without hitch on the tracks and the crowd followed them as a thoroughfare. When it was demonstrated that the tracks and cable and grips were in good order, the number of trains was increased and the time between them was shortened. The time of the first car this morning from the western terminus to Sixth street, was about half an hour.

ELOY ALFARO.

THE REVOLUTIONARY LEADER OF ECUADOR IN ENFORCED RETIREMENT.

A Political and Social Sensation at Guayaquil.—The scene of a distinguished Family Commits a Big Theft—The Youth Exonerated by Alfaro.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, April 13.—A morning paper publishes the following correspondence from Guayaquil, Ecuador, under date of March 16. The star of Eloy Alfaro, the revolutionary leader and former ally of Venutemilla, is not in the ascendant just now. He has been living in enforced retirement at Lima since the failure of his attempt to overthrow the government of Cosmao, his successful rival in the contest for the presidency. During his exile, partly to amuse himself and partly to keep his hand in, Alfaro has culminated sundry violent manifestos against the law and order party in Ecuador; and the latter, in their turn, have consistently held him up to public execration as the apostle of anarchy and aguaradiente. But he now comes out in the novel character of a defender of injured innocence and a vindicator of persecuted patriotism, and all Guayaquil is torn up over a letter he has sent here from Lima. The circumstances are these: Last December a youth named Modesto Rivadeneira, formerly employed in the preventive service, absconded with $10,000 of the funds of the provincial treasury, to which he had been transferred. The event created a great sensation, as Rivadeneira belonged to one of the best known families in Guayaquil; but the sensation was intensified when it was learned he had left a letter with the editors of the radical organ here, in which it was declared that he was actuated by no necessary necessity, but had appropriated the money simply to devote it to "the cause of his convictions." It was openly hinted that he was not without accomplices, who had secured a good share of the plunder, and for a time public feeling ran high; but the attempted assassination of Cosmao and the perpetual excitement of South American affairs soon caused it to be forgotten, and Rivadeneira escaped to Peru, taking his booty to Alfaro. Rivadeneira's mother, however, was unwilling that her son's memory should rest under a cloud, and she demanded a letter from Alfaro exculpating him. Alfaro promptly replied, and the lady was satisfied. His vindication was printed, accompanying it with an address in which he begged the public to observe that the funds had been delivered to the last cent, and that he reserved no part of them for himself.

Alfaro's letter is as follows:

To Teresa A. V. De Rivadeneira: MADAM—It has been a source of great satisfaction to me to have met in this city your estimable son, Modesto Rivadeneira, who was provisionally exonerated from the imputation of having stolen the money of his country. The Liberal party has much to be grateful to you for.

deserves high praise, for it proves the solidity of his principles at a very tender age, and gives hope for the future. The honesty with which he has acted in handing over to my hands the last cent of the money he had obtained by his own efforts, the most brilliant defense that he can present to obtain the exoneration of all good people, the purity of his patriotism, I therefore congratulate you, madam, on the distinguished behavior of your Modesto, and I offer you my respects and sincere friendship. Your obedient servant, ELOY ALFARO.

Lima, February 5, 1886.

The cool impudence of this interesting production has excited the fervid temperament of the loyal Ecuadorians to a condition of ebullition. Rivadeneira's offense is so common, and the youth himself is regarded as a sort of martyr. Alfaro is branded as being unfit to live. His conduct is held up as an example to the youth in harboring such traitors it will have to set up the gallows, like Colombia, in order to save itself from ruin.

The Government organ, El Anotador, winds up its indignant article on the subject with this fine rhetorical outburst: "Shades of Rocafructe, Olmedo and other patriots, who in the good days of the Republic strove for that Liberal cause which Alfaro now turns to ridicule! In your hands beyond the tomb you must despair that you cannot come forth and place your icy hand upon the forehead of this reprobate and cry, 'avaunt, thou liest.' But there are a million of your descendants who well know how to punish the traitors. Best tranquility, venable shades; rather than suffer the domination of iniquity the sons of Ecuador will join you in the tomb."

CLEVERLY FOILED.

A Bogus Circus Agent Takes in the Business Men of New Brunswick.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, April 13.—Several citizens of New Brunswick are just now highly indignant over the easy manner in which they have been swindled by a sharp, genteel stranger.

He appeared upon the streets last Monday morning, well dressed and affable. His name, he said, was Fuller, advance agent for Adam Forepaugh's circus, and upon the strength of this statement Bartley McCormick, proprietor of the Railroad Hotel, offered him unlimited credit. The affable stranger went to the manager of the Masonic Opera House, who has charge of Bill-poster shows, and business during that gentleman's absence. "I would like," he said, "to make arrangements for the billing and advertising of our circus, which may appear here on Saturday, May 21. It is not yet decided whether we shall stop here or at Elizabeth, and will not conclude a contract until after I consult with Forepaugh, but if you will give me your price, I think we may strike a bargain."

Manager Fuller gave the information, the agent bowed his thanks and departed. He next visited Garrettson & Bowne, hay and feed merchants, to secure funds for the animals during the proposed visit. He also called upon William Street, an engage for the season, etc. Geo. Delmer, the butcher, was also waited upon and satisfactory terms were made for the lot or lease of a lot of beef, which was decided that the circus should show in the city. He appeared thoroughly conversant with the price of everything he conversed with and with all the details of the management of a circus, and so possible was his story that even "Harry" Cook, the city Clerk, was "gulled" and arrangements made for the rental of suitable grounds. The most complete set of foolery, however, was made by the editors of the daily papers. They and their wives were promised a treat in the shape of a ride in a special car to the circus at Philadelphia, where they were to be entertained lavishly at the expense of the circus.

Forepaugh & Barnum. Mayor Story was invited to take a trip in the car for the use of the newspaper men; he accepted with warmth. Late Monday evening the stranger said that Mr. Forepaugh had telegraphed him to make all arrangements for the exhibition of the circus on the date proposed, and "Fuller" at once issued lavish orders. He engaged five tons of sawdust, ten barrels of potatoes and all the necessities of the steward's tent. He made a contract with Ferguson, the livery man, for the use of horses to advertise the circus in advance of the street parade. He bought many things, but he didn't pay for them, and furthermore, he borrowed considerable money saying that he would pay it back as soon as he got a momentarily expected check from Forepaugh. Tuesday morning he left on foot, promising to return at noon, but when he failed to show up at the dinner table suppers were served. Forepaugh was telegraphed to and the following reply received: Have no agent by name of Fuller. He is a fraud.

ADAM FOREPAUGH.

Philadelphia, April 13.

It was too late, however, the genteel swindler had gone. The left the city Tuesday morning on the 9:30 train for New York City, leaving behind him many unpaid bills. The man was fashionably dressed, wore a derby hat, and a close-cropped mustache. He was stout and well built.

A STRANGER'S ADVICE.

And the Fortunate Result of Its Acceptance.

The fight for and against selling by weight, which is in progress, is not a new one. The poultry commission men and the hucksters have already had one good effect. The commission men say that the market for the first time. An Indianapolis buyer has permanently located here and buys up all poultry received from the country. The daily price, which was 10 cents for chickens, 12 cents for turkeys, and 15 cents for geese, has been raised to 12 cents for chickens, 15 cents for turkeys, and 18 cents for geese. A Chicago buyer is also in the market, and has already shipped several car-loads of poultry. This relieves the commission men of the strain caused by the refusal of the hucksters to purchase by pound, and they claim that the hucksters are already buying according to the new weight. The rule is regarded as already established.

The weak condition of the corn market is causing considerable comments and it was related today by R. J. Wood, the Wood-Maud Milling company, that he had bought No. 2 white corn at 51 per bushel within three days. The price sold to-day at 53 per bushel. There is a strong demand for wheat from country millers and an elevator man said that if the owners of wheat in the elevators would sell nearly every bushel in the city, the corn would be sold. As it is the movement to the country is heavy, the price of wheat is expected to be a partial failure of the wheat crops in Illinois and Missouri.

Mr. Blank was found by a reporter, working near his establishment at the corner of Twenty-fifth street and Sullivan avenue. "It seems good to be able to work," he said, looking up. "In fact, it seems good to be able to move around at all. Some time ago, I was taken with rheumatism. For four weeks it kept me in terrible agony. I was hardly able to get around, and then only by using a chair to lean on. I felt, when I moved, as if pins and needles were sticking into me. My feet were very much swollen, and the slightest movement caused agony."

"I went to a doctor, of course, but his treatment did me no good. He recommended a certain kind of bath, which failed to help me. Another doctor treated me with medicines, which also failed to do me any good. The pain increased and grew intolerable. One day a stranger came into my place. He noticed my condition and advised me to go and see Dr. McCoy. Very fortunately, I was in a mood to take anybody's advice. I went to see Dr. McCoy and went under his treatment. In a short time all the pain ceased. The swelling left me. My strength came back to me, and now, as you see, I am able to do vigorous work, and as well and strong a man as there is in the city."

OPINION OF AN EXPERT.

Mrs. Mary B. Welch, Teacher of Domestic Economy at State University of Iowa.

"My deliberate judgment is that the oven of the Range, as compared with others is not only more equally heated in every part—from top as well as rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation the food placed therein is better cooked, while retaining a fresher flavor, and a larger proportion of its best juices. I have found, also, that the consumption of fuel in this Range for a given amount of work, is much less than any other."
